Description:

Social media is an integral part of our youth’s lives and it’s here to stay; this presentation will provide a quick guide to understand current trends of social media, how it affects our youth, and how you can help circumvent negative effects. There will be an overview of popular social media uses and its effects on mental health. Attention will be brought to how social media plays a role in adolescent development and its potential correlation with anxiety and depressive symptoms. Cyberbullying and the fight against cyberbullying will be outlined. Lastly, tips and suggestions for parents and providers will be discussed.

Learning Objectives:

1) Identify popular forms and positive aspects of social media.
2) Explain how social medial effects mental health.
3) Describe the prevalence of cyberbullying on social media.
4) List potential prevention measures to decrease negative effects on mental health.

Presenter:

Dr. Stephanie Larsen is a Florida Licensed Psychologist at Palm Beach Behavioral Health and Wellness. She has prided herself on being able to provide effective services to children, adolescents, and adults in the community over the last six years. Dr. Larsen is currently the director of the anxiety treatment clinic within PBBHW and secondarily specializes in work with adolescents, treating self-injury, and providing psycho-educational testing. Dr. Larsen provides a warm and supportive environment to help individuals feel comfortable enough to make changes that they want to see in themselves. Due to her diverse background, Dr. Larsen has been able to hone the ability to integrate a warm, compassionate, accepting environment with evidence-based treatments such as cognitive behavioral therapy. Because each individual presents with a diverse set of needs and challenges, Dr. Larsen finds it important to tailor her approach to effectively address each individual’s specific needs.

Dr. Larsen obtained her Bachelor’s Degree in Psychology at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa and graduated from Nova Southeastern University with her doctorate degree in Clinical Psychology. She has completed a wide range of rotations and practicum experiences which has shaped her clinical attitudes and practices. Some experiences that have played a crucial role in her professional development include: providing behavioral interventions in HeadStart and preschool classrooms, engaging in non-directive play therapy, working in a specialized Anxiety
Clinic providing treatment of anxiety based disorders (i.e. Generalized Anxiety, Phobias, Social Phobia, OCD, performance/sport anxiety), providing supportive therapy and discussions of death and dying at a children’s inpatient hospital/group homes, and finally completed her pre-doctoral internship at The Center for Group Counseling providing individual and group therapy to a diverse population as well as completing psycho-educational testing. Dr. Larsen completed her postdoctoral residency at Palm Beach Behavioral Health and Wellness where she honed skills related to psycho-educational testing, treatment of anxiety, depression, and family therapy. It was also during this experience where she decided that she would like to continue to pursue a career in private practice and in helping clients improve their lives. Dr. Larsen specifically created the anxiety clinic to provide specialized care for those individuals whose lives were being uprooted due to the consequences of anxiety, OCD symptoms, and panic attacks. Dr. Larsen identifies the most rewarding aspect of her job being related to watching individuals improve, take charge, and learn to enjoy their lives again.
