Description:

The family therapy didactics are a three part series, beginning with Genogram Assessment, followed by Structural Family Therapy, and Strategic Family Therapy. In the intermediate level presentation, Structural Family Therapy, participants will learn the history and background of family therapy models as they stemmed from individualistic models of care. Participants will learn how theory set interventions in place for clinicians to use structural family therapy in practice. Participants will learn basic intervention and have a chance to learn how they are used through case examples and video demonstrations by theorists using Structural Family Therapy.

Learning Objectives:

1) Identify etiological causes of family organization dysfunction from the Structural perspective of treatment.
2) Discuss key features, goals, and interventions of structural family therapy methods.
3) Identify commonalities of empirically based family therapy methods.
4) Demonstrate differences between models of family therapy using case study.

Presenter:

Kelly Everson, Psy.D. is co-owner and Florida Licensed Psychologist at Palm Beach Behavioral Health and Wellness. Additionally, Dr. Everson serves as the Training Director for PBBHW’s psychology training programs. Dr. Everson specializes in psychotherapy and assessment of children, adolescents and families. Dr. Everson is experienced in group therapy with adolescents and parents, individual therapy with children, adolescents and adults, and family therapy. Dr. Everson leads the Autism Spectrum Clinic at PBBHW and primarily works with children, adolescents and adults diagnosed with ASD. She has worked with this population since 2006 and feels renewed every time she sees change in her clients- particularly when they have social victories! She is excited to host social skills groups for children and adolescents and always looks to add parent involvement and support to these groups. Helping parents through her work with children and adolescents is her passion. In addition to ASD, Dr. Everson has worked with a variety of presenting problems, including Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), mood disorders, peer pressure and bullying. Dr. Everson has extensive experience completing full psychological and psycho-educational evaluations with children and adolescents and often attends Individualized Education Plan (IEP) meetings in the schools for her clients. Dr. Everson is a certified facilitator in John Gottman’s ‘Bringing Baby Home’ program for new parents and regularly holds parenting workshops and classes in the community. Dr. Everson received her bachelor’s degree in biology and psychology from the University of Wisconsin in Madison and continued her education at the Illinois School of Professional Psychology in Chicago, earning a Master’s and Doctorate in Clinical Psychology with a specialization in Family Psychology.
