With over 30 years of experience in public service, I have had the privilege of being appointed to posts by three governors, two mayors of New York City, a county executive, a city manager, and a district attorney - leading large complex departments of 14k sworn, 5k civilians and with over one-billion-dollar budgets.

My skills lie in organizational development, making an organization better at what it does. As a talent hunter, I believe that the best way to improve an organization is to improve its participants. As a motivational leader, I foster teamwork and energize staff to higher levels of performance. I have achieved cohesion among disparate groups to work collectively to achieve goals.

I offer a unique combination of practical experience in policing, corrections, education, teaching, and training with legal and academic credentials. My educational background includes a Juris Doctorate from a top law school, a Master's Degree in Public Administration from a leading university, and a Bachelor's Degree in Criminal Justice.
