Protect Your Paycheck

Short Term Disability insurance can replace part of your income if a disability keeps you from working for a short time. It pays you directly to help cover expenses during recovery, like housing, food and child care.

Long Term Disability insurance can help pay the bills if you become disabled and can't work for an extended period. That could be a few months or several years. This coverage helps replace part of your paycheck. That can help you protect your lifestyle and savings.

Enrollment Opportunity

During your annual enrollment period, you may enroll in Short Term Disability insurance and/or Long Term Disability insurance without answering medical underwriting questions. After this period, evidence of insurability will be required.
